

Prehistoric Pottery Workshop with Keith Grenoble

Three-Day Learning Event begins June 5, 2021
outside Leonardtown, MD in St. Mary's County

CLASS DESCRIPTION

Join Keith and discover the art of making prehistoric North American pottery replicas. Learn to find and work with clay, techniques for making a vessel, and how to dry your vessel and fire it in an open kiln! $150 includes 3 days of instruction and all materials.

June 5 & 6: 10AM-5PM

Pottery-making Instruction with Keith Grenoble

June 12: shortly before sunset

Pottery firing with Keith Grenoble

June 13: morning

Come pick up your fired projects!

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Contact: Kira Sekulow
KSekulow@gmail.com

Keith Grenoble has been a product of the Back to the Land movement and developed close ties to Native communities from an early age. Keith started his journey by making stone tools represented in the rich archaeological record of Tidewater, Virginia and has been teaching earth skills since 1987. Over time, Keith has become skilled in a variety of earth skills. He is very passionate about making simulations of prehistoric cookpots, and enjoys working with people of all experience levels and interests. He can often be seen catching a knap here and there.